INTRODUCTION Purpose and currency of checklist. This checklist covers matters to be discussed and information to be collected before the commencement of family law proceedings. It focuses on the initial interview with the client, but includes some follow-up from that interview. This checklist is designed to be used with the CLIENT IDENTIFICATION AND VERIFICATION PROCEDURE (A-1) checklist. The lawyer should also refer, as appropriate, to the checklists for FAMILY LAW AGREEMENT PROCEDURE (D-2), SEPARATION AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-3), MARRIAGE AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-4), FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5), and GENERAL LITIGATION PROCEDURE (E-2). This checklist is current to June 1, 2015. New developments: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Family Law Act. On March 18, 2013, the Family Law Act, S.B.C. 2011, c. 25 (the “FLA”) came into force, along with accompanying amendments to the Provincial Court (Family) Rules, B.C. Reg. 417/98 (see B.C. Reg. 132/2012 and B.C. Reg. 122/2014) and the Supreme Court Family Rules, B.C. Reg. 169/2009 (the “SCFR”; see B.C. Reg. 133/2012, B.C. Reg. 249/2014, and B.C. Reg. 104/2015 (the latter effective July 1, 2015)). Amendments to the FLA were made in the Justice Statutes Amendment Act, 2014, S.B.C. 2014, c. 9, effective May 26, 2014. The FLA repealed the Family Relations Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 128 (the “FRA”) and effected fundamental changes to family law in B.C., particularly regarding children and the division of property after the breakdown of a relationship. The FRA continues to affect orders and agreements made under it, as well as cases commenced under the FRA but not concluded by the time the FLA came into force. Consider the transition provisions of the FLA when advising clients regarding family law proceedings that were under way when the FLA came into force. For educational material about the FLA, including a concordance between the FRA and the FLA, see www.justicebc.ca. Reg. 169/2009) are amended in numerous ways pursuant to B.C. Reg. 104/2015, effective July 1, 2015.</li> <li>• Code of Professional Conduct for British Columbia (the “BC Code”). The confidentiality restrictions in Appendix B, paragraph 4(c.1) were amended in April 2015 and allow parenting coordinators some discretion to disclose information. Rule 3.6-3, commentary [1] regarding the duty of candour owed to clients respecting fees and other charges for which a client is billed was amended in June 2015. Effective July 2015, rule 3.7-9 will require that a lawyer promptly notify the client, other counsel, and the court or tribunal of the lawyer’s withdrawal from a file.</li> <li>• Family Homes on Reserves and Matrimonial Interests or Rights Act. On December 16, 2014, ss. 12 to 52 of the Family Homes on Reserves and Matrimonial Interests or Rights Act, S.C. 2013, c. 20, came into force (see SI/2013-128), ss. 1 to 11 and 53 having come into force on December 16, 2013. This new federal legislation pertains to the ability of First Nations to make rules about family residences on reservation lands and how those homes will be used and occupied upon the breakdown of a spousal relationship. The Act applies to married and common-law spouses living on reserve land where at least one spouse is a First Nations member or an Indian. Sections 13 to 52 apply to First Nations who have not enacted their own matrimonial real property laws.</li> </ul>

PRELIMINARY MATTERS 1.1 When arranging the first interview: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>.1 Check for conflicts as described in BC Code rules 3.4-1 to 3.4-43. Do not act for opposing parties. In addressing potential conflicts, consider not only the spouses but also any third parties who may be involved in the case, including former or new partners, as well as relevant corporate entities or relatives who have made financial contributions to the spouses, if relief is sought from them. Even in drafting a marriage agreement or issuing a joint action for divorce, always refer one party for independent legal advice and document having done so. Note that a lawyer, including one who has acted as a mediator for the spouses, may act for both spouses in a joint action for divorce if both parties have received independent legal advice in relation to the matter and all relief is by consent (Ethics Committee opinion, Benchers' Bulletin, 2003: No. 2 (March-April)). Notwithstanding this, it may be simpler to have only one party file for the divorce.</li> <li>.2 Check for urgency or risk. Assess whether a person or property is at risk. Identify any imminent deadlines and the steps required to meet them. Assess whether existing practice obligations permit you to take the case. Assess what protective steps may need to be taken. If proceedings have commenced, obtain the name of opposing counsel and have the prospective client bring all court documents and relevant agreements to the interview.</li> <li>.3 Require the client to bring identity documents to verify his or her identity.</li> <li>.4 Ask the client to bring a summary of his or her financial situation to the meeting and any information in relation to the opposing party's financial circumstances. Consider asking the client to bring all relevant financial information. (See items 4 and 5: "Collect Information" and "Collect Documents.") Consider providing an intake questionnaire to the client to complete before the initial meeting, to make better use of interview time.</li> <li>.5 Consider asking the client to write out and bring to the first meeting a history of the relationship (including any family violence), the parties' employment histories, and a list of the most pressing concerns, for use during the interview.</li> <li>.6 Advise the client of the limitations on solicitor-client privilege in the event that they wish to have a third party attend at any meetings.</li> </ol>

1.2 Confirm compliance with Law Society of British Columbia Rules on client identification and verification, and complete the CLIENT IDENTIFICATION AND VERIFICATION PROCEDURE (A-1) checklist. 1.3 Perform duties as required by FLA, s. 8: screen for family violence; present out-of-court resolution options; and inform the client that outcomes depend on the best interests of the child. Explain the duty to disclose (FLA, s. 5). 1.4 Determine if there is a need for urgent action (e.g., to secure a child at risk, protect a person from harm, preserve assets or evidence, ensure financial support, or prevent imminent foreclosure or insolvency). Chapter 10 of the CLEBC’s Family Law Deskbook reviews measures for protecting assets. Is Your Client Safe? A Lawyer’s Guide to Relationship Violence is available at www.legalaid.bc.ca/publications. If family violence is present, provide the client with a list of support resources. Give consideration as to appropriate dispute resolution options where there is family violence. 1.5 Determine the client’s general objectives and questions. Discuss the relief and options available. Canvass out-of-court resolution (FLA, s. 8), such as mediation or collaborative separation and divorce, even if that is outside the scope of your usual practice. Explain the need to make decisions as to custody, guardianship, and contact with children that are in the best interests of the children. In cases of separation or divorce, discuss the possibility of reconciliation (Divorce Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. 3 (2nd Supp.), s. 9) and the availability of resources such as counselling, parenting support, or parenting coordinators. Consider recommending the “Parenting After Separation” course, which is required in certain circumstances in the Provincial Court process (Rule 21 of the Provincial Court (Family) Rules). 1.6 Third-party interests or claims involved in the case should be considered and may affect the process. For example, cases involving intra-family loans, corporate entities, and trusts will require specific pleadings and often the involvement of independent counsel and other professionals. Note that the FLA promotes out-of-court resolution for all parties in a family law dispute. 1.7 Aboriginal clients: consider whether a lawyer with Aboriginal law experience should be consulted. Special considerations may apply, whether or not parties and property are situated on or off reserve. If the property is on a First Nation reserve consider the Family Homes on Reserves and Matrimonial Interests or Rights Act, S.C. 2013, c. 20. Note the requirements of FLA, Part 10, Division 3, which provide for standing and notice in cases concerning Nisga’a and “treaty first nations children” and treaty lands. 1.8 Provide general legal information and preliminary advice to the client. Consider Best Practice Guidelines for Lawyers Practising Family Law (Family Law Task Force, Law Society of British Columbia (15 July 2011), available at www.lawsociety.bc.ca). Recommend steps to take in the short term, and explain what further information and documents you need before you can render a final opinion. 1.9 Satisfy yourself that the client is competent to give instructions. Consider factors such as literacy, age, mental competence, and cultural pressures. Assess the client’s emotional state and consider a referral to a professional counsellor or physician.

LEGEND — NA = Not applicable L = Lawyer LA = Legal assistant ACTION TO BE CONSIDERED	NA	L	LA	DATE DUE	DATE DONE
1.10 Advise the client of the rough costs involved in almost every step in the case. Avoid giving firm estimates. The client should be made aware of the factors that may increase the cost of the case, including the choice and urgency of processes undertaken, the degree of conflict, the level of co-operation from the client, the level of co-operation from opposing parties and counsel, and any need for outside expertise. Advise the client how your account is calculated and how and when it should be paid. Use a written retainer agreement and ensure that it is signed and returned before proceeding. Consider the use of a limited retainer if you will be delegating certain aspects of the work required to your client or to other professionals. If you will be providing a limited scope of legal services, ensure that the client understands the limits of the retainer and the risks associated with limiting the scope of the services provided, and confirm that understanding in writing. 1.11 Consider obtaining retainer funds. Caution: consider Law Society Rule 3-59 (Rule 3-51.1 before July 1, 2015), which restricts circumstances in which a lawyer can accept an aggregate amount of $7,500 or more in cash in respect of any one client matter or transaction. 2. ADVISE THE CLIENT AND OBTAIN INSTRUCTIONS 2.1 Advise the client about whether an action should be commenced and the available alternatives to court resolution of the case, including negotiation, mediation, arbitration, or collaborative family law processes, as appropriate. .1 Consider applicable limitation periods and requisite time periods: e.g., a support claim by a person in a marriage-like relationship is affected by FLA s. 3(1), which defines “spouse” to include a person in a marriage-like relationship if the parties lived together for a continuous period of at least two years or had a child together; also, FLA, s. 147(4) sets a limitation period for bringing a claim against a stepparent for child support of one year from the last contribution the stepparent made to child support and FLA, s. 198 sets out various time limits within which claims may be brought. 2.2 If the client asks to assist in the collection of financial information, consider a limited scope retainer. Note that many financial institutions will not provide information to the lawyer without written authorization from the client, and, in the case of joint accounts, written authorization from both the client and the client’s spouse. 2.3 If the client wants a divorce, give a preliminary opinion as to whether grounds exist: .1 Separation for not less than one year immediately preceding anticipated determination of divorce proceeding, and separation at commencement of proceeding. .2 Adultery of spouse. .3 Cruelty by spouse. 2.4 Consider the possibility of divorce proceedings against the client, based on existing grounds; advise regarding future conduct that would constitute grounds. Advise regarding the possibility of an award of costs against a co-defendant. Obtain from the client an original government-issued marriage certificate. Explain that an official translation will be required for court purposes if the marriage certificate is not in English.

LEGEND — NA = Not applicable L = Lawyer LA = Legal assistant ACTION TO BE CONSIDERED	NA	L	LA	DATE DUE	DATE DONE
2.5 If the client wants a divorce, ensure that he or she understands the meaning and significance of collusion, connivance, and condonation: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>.1 Collusion (any agreement, understanding, or arrangement by a client or anyone else to fabricate, falsify, or suppress evidence in order to get a divorce);</li> <li>.2 Connivance (one spouse encouraging the other to commit adultery); and</li> <li>.3 Condonation (when the innocent spouse has forgiven the other spouse for the adultery, in the sense that he or she would take the adulterer back, to live together as spouses).</li> </ul> 2.6 Advise the client regarding the Spousal Support Advisory Guidelines and the Federal Child Support Guidelines, the determination of income, and the general entitlement or obligation of the client concerning support: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>.1 Consider running the software calculations for applicable support.</li> <li>.2 Explain the obligations regarding payment of child support in the “table amount” in addition to “special and extraordinary expenses”.</li> <li>.3 If applicable, advise the client regarding the determination of support in “shared custody” situations (where the non-primary residency parent has the children in his or her care more than 40% of the time).</li> <li>.4 If acting for the support recipient, ask if the client has requested financial information from the other parent, and consider seeking instructions to confirm any financial disclosure requests in writing.</li> <li>.5 Advise the client regarding the possibility of retroactive child support.</li> <li>.6 Determine whether the Family Maintenance Enforcement Program (FMEP) is involved.</li> </ul> 2.7 Advise that, when making a spousal support order, the court will consider any economic advantages or disadvantages to both spouses arising from the marriage or its breakdown. Discuss the concept of self-sufficiency. Discuss the grounds for entitlement: compensatory; non-compensatory; and contractual. 2.8 Discuss any need to retain professional advisors for valuations, tax issues, pensions, or complex financial issues. Discuss the method of choosing experts, payment for services and additional retainer requirements. Confirm instructions on these issues in writing. 2.9 Advise on issues regarding acquisition and disposition of property during the period between separation and settlement. 2.10 Advise the client to consider changing beneficiary designations. 2.11 Advise on issues related to the management of joint accounts, joint debts, and joint credit cards during the period between separation and settlement. 2.12 Advise the client to gather and secure relevant documents. Caution the client against appropriating private documents, mail, and email. Consider BC Code rule 7.2-10 as to a lawyer’s duties regarding inadvertent access to documents of the opposing party. Advise the client to change their email passwords and password and privacy settings on their social media accounts.

LEGEND — NA = Not applicable L = Lawyer LA = Legal assistant ACTION TO BE CONSIDERED	NA	L	LA	DATE DUE	DATE DONE
2.13 Advise the client of the child-focused foundation of the FLA, and review the provisions respecting guardianship and parenting on separation contained in FLA, Part 4. Consider the impact of the FLA on pre-existing agreements and orders concerning children. 2.14 Advise the client regarding any potential effect of interim parenting arrangements on the ability to obtain final parenting terms, including custody under the Divorce Act, if applicable. Advise the client regarding the impact of any custody or parenting arrangement on support issues (e.g., shared custody or parenting). Explain the guardianship provisions of the FLA and the parenting responsibilities that flow from guardianship under FLA, ss. 39 to 43. 2.15 Advise the client regarding excluded property (FLA, Part 5) and the potential availability of tracing relief where family property has been acquired with the proceeds of excluded property. Explain the evidentiary burden in tracing claims. Note whether the transition provisions of the FLA require consideration of the previous property regime under the FRA. Claims filed before the FLA came into force are decided under the FRA, including property claims by unmarried spouses that involve the principles of resulting trust or the law of remedial constructive trust (see CLEBC's Family Law Sourcebook for British Columbia, chapter 4). Review FLA, Part 13 for the transitional rules affecting family claims made before the FLA came into force. 2.16 If an existing claim is based on the FRA, consider whether amendments to the pleadings may be available to advance claims under the FLA. Consider invoking the law of trusts (e.g., for division of property between spouses if a third party has made contributions to family property, or to obtain priority over creditors where a spouse is heavily indebted). 2.17 Determine the tax implications of any proposed support and property division, and consider whether another arrangement might be more beneficial to the client. Consider seeking tax advice, including U.S. tax advice, if applicable. 2.18 Note any special issues, such as: .1 Where a spouse may go bankrupt and the case has been commenced under the FRA, consider getting an immediate FRA, s. 57 declaratory order of irreconcilability to preserve the client's right to 50% of the family assets (bearing in mind that 50% of the client's assets would be available to the trustee). Note that the only triggering event under the FLA is the separation of the parties. If a spouse is entitled to more than 50%, consider seeking an order for unequal division by use of SCFR Rule 10-10 or 10-11. .2 Where an insolvent spouse is transferring property to the other spouse, avoid contravening the provisions of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. B-3; the Fraudulent Conveyance Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 163; the Fraudulent Preference Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 164; and the Criminal Code, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46. Under BC Code rule 3.2-7, a lawyer must not engage in any activity that the lawyer knows or ought to know assists in or encourages any dishonesty, crime, or fraud.

LEGEND — NA = Not applicable L = Lawyer LA = Legal assistant ACTION TO BE CONSIDERED	NA	L	LA	DATE DUE	DATE DONE
.3 Where a client’s spouse is (or may be) dying, and assets are in his or her name, consider commencing action immediately to preserve claims and, if a proceeding has been commenced under the FRA, consider seeking an immediate FRA, s. 57 declaration to ensure that at least 50% of the assets do not fall into the estate of the deceased spouse. Advise the client regarding consequent loss of any right to survivorship. .4 If the client is dying and assets are in his or her name, seek instructions as to the client’s wishes on death. Inquire as to whether the client has a will; consider referral to a lawyer practising wills and estates law. .5 If the client is a recent immigrant, or has language issues, consider whether advice should be sought from a lawyer who has appropriate experience and knowledge, or who speaks the client’s first language. .6 If the client or opposing party is Aboriginal, consider whether a lawyer with Aboriginal law experience should be consulted. Special considerations may apply, whether or not parties or property (or both) are situated on or off reserve. For example: (a) Property may belong to an Indian band, or otherwise be subject to the Indian Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. I-5, or other legislation (e.g., the Nisga’a Final Agreement Act, S.B.C. 1999, c. 2, for Nisga’a citizens). The FLA does not apply to the division of on-reserve matrimonial property, nor did the FRA. The law is not settled with respect to valuing on-reserve property for the purposes of including compensation to a spouse instead of an order for the division of such property. Note the requirements of FLA, s. 210 which provides for standing and notice in cases concerning treaty first nations lands. Review the federal Family Homes on Reserves and Matrimonial Interests or Rights Act, which came into full effect on December 16, 2014 (see SI/2013-128). Under the new legislation, certain First Nations, not on the schedule to the First Nations Land Management Act, had one year (during a transition period from December 16, 2013 to December 15, 2014) to implement their own matrimonial property laws. Beginning December 16, 2014, the new federal law applies to First Nations who have not enacted their own matrimonial real property laws. First Nations are not limited to the transition periods to take steps to ratify their own laws and may enact their community-specific laws at any time. The Act applies to married and common-law spouses living on reserve land where at least one spouse is a First Nations member or an Indian. It provides separate regimes for matrimonial property division for member and non-member spouses on reserve and is very different from the provincial legislation. (b) A child’s Aboriginal heritage is a factor that is considered in determining what parenting arrangement will be in the child’s best interests. Note the requirements of FLA, ss. 208 and 209 which provide for standing and notice in cases concerning Nisga’a and treaty first nations children. (c) In calculating child support under the Child Support Guidelines, s. 19, or in calculating spousal support, amounts to be awarded must be adjusted if any party is exempt from federal and provincial income taxes.

(d) In enforcing support payments, if the debtor is an “Indian” (as defined in the Indian Act) who lives on a reserve, the debtor’s income and assets may be exempt from many enforcement proceedings (see Indian Act, s. 89). Generally, a non-Indian cannot seize moveable assets situated on-reserve from an Indian. (e) For further information, see the articles published on the “Aboriginal Law” page in the “Practice Points” area of the CLEBC website at www.cle.bc.ca. .7 If the client or the spouse is a U.S. citizen, a dual citizen of the U.S., has ever held a green card, has been a “U.S. Resident” for U.S. income tax purposes, or has ever owned any assets in the U.S., consider whether advice should be sought from a lawyer who has appropriate experience and knowledge of U.S. tax law. There may be significant U.S. tax liabilities, which must be considered in any property settlement. Note that under the FLA, all debt incurred by either spouse over the relationship is “family debt,” including post-separation debt incurred to maintain family property, and is shared (FLA, s. 86). .8 Note the expanded definition of “family violence” in FLA, s. 1(1), and screen for the presence of family violence (FLA, s. 38). Consider what additional assistance may be required by the client and any children. If there is relationship violence, formulate a safety plan with the client and ask for instructions should he or she disappear. Consider BC Code rule 3.3-3. See also Is Your Client Safe? A Lawyer’s Guide to Relationship Violence, available at www.legalaid.bc.ca/publications. 2.19 Discuss the effect on an existing will of a separation (see Wills, Estates and Succession Act, S.B.C. 2009, c. 13, s. 56 concerning nullity). Advise the client to review his or her will. If the client has no will, consider recommending the client make one. Discuss the potential effect of a divorce on the spouse’s entitlement to participate in the other spouse’s medical and dental benefits plan (if any). 2.20 Inquire about any pension entitlements of either spouse. Consider delivering notice of the client’s interest in a pension asset to the relevant pension plan administrator (see item 4.11.6(m)). Advise the client regarding the default division of earned credits in the Canada Pension Plan. Consider obtaining an opinion from CPP on the effect of equalization of benefits (send authorizations by both parties to the Income Security Program Branch). Consider an application to divide the parties’ CPP credits. Consider obtaining an opinion as to the value of any pension to be divided, if the client wants to exchange a pension interest for other property. 2.21 Discuss and consider obtaining instructions to do any of the following that apply: .1 Write a letter to the opposing party advising of your engagement as counsel, requesting financial disclosure, and requesting the name of opposing counsel. .2 If the opposing party is represented, contact opposing counsel. Discuss consensual dispute resolution methods.

LEGEND — NA = Not applicable L = Lawyer LA = Legal assistant ACTION TO BE CONSIDERED	NA	L	LA	DATE DUE	DATE DONE
.3 If the opposing party is unrepresented, BC Code rule 7.2-9 states that the lawyer must urge the unrepresented person to obtain independent legal representation, take care to see the unrepresented person is not proceeding under the impression that his or her interests will be protected by the lawyer, and make it clear to the unrepresented person that the lawyer is acting exclusively in the interest of the client. Also see rule 5.1-1, commentary [6], regarding without notice or uncontested matters. .4 Consider engaging a specialist to provide a parenting assessment under FLA, s. 211 or a “views of the child” or “voice of the child” report. Note the requirement of FLA, s. 37(2)(b) to consider the child’s views unless it would be inappropriate to do so. .5 Consider engaging an appraiser, accountant, business valuator, investigator, tax or pension specialist. Note the requirements of SCFR Rule 13-3 concerning the appointment of joint experts. .6 Draft a marriage or cohabitation agreement (see the MARRIAGE AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-4) checklist). .7 Draft a separation agreement (see the SEPARATION AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-3) checklist). .8 Commence proceedings, involving corollary relief such as custody and support under the Divorce Act (see the FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5) checklist) or corollary relief including support, parenting arrangements and/or property division under the FLA (see the FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5) checklist). Carefully consider which legislation to bring the claim under giving consideration to the doctrine of paramountcy. Note M. (B.D.) v. M. (A.E.), 2014 BCSC 453, with respect to the interrelationship between the FLA and the DA regarding parenting issues. Note FLA, s. 108 with respect to choice of law rules. .9 Bring an application for interim relief, if required (see the FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5) checklist), taking into consideration the requirement of a judicial case conference prior to any court application, unless urgency can be established (SCFR, Rule 7-1). .10 Bring a variation proceeding, if required (see the FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5) checklist). .11 Consider claims based in trust law in addition to statutory property relief if there are unfairness issues under the FLA property regime or there are third parties who hold property to which your client may have a claim. .12 Apply for partition and sale of real property under the Partition of Property Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 347. .13 Apply for an entry on title under the Land (Spouse Protection) Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 246, or a caveat under the Land Title Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 250, Part 19 if no action has been commenced. .14 If action has been commenced, file a certificate of pending litigation in the land title office. .15 Apply for appointment of a receiver, if required. .16 Include a claim for a change of name in Schedule 5 of the notice of family claim or counterclaim. This claim is not required if the client is reverting to a birth name or a name used immediately prior to marriage.

.17 Consider a declaration of parentage under FLA, Part 3. Carefully review these new parentage rules. .18 Represent the client in proceedings under the Child, Family and Community Service Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 46 (see the CHILD, FAMILY AND COMMUNITY SERVICE ACT PROCEDURE (D-6) checklist). 2.22 Consider advising the client to keep a diary noting contacts with the spouse and children, as well as financial information such as expenses related to the marriage breakdown, ongoing expenses, payments made by one spouse to the other, etc. 2.23 Consider getting a full retainer in advance and advise of any requirements to top up the retainer. Include adequate amounts for disbursements, including any third-party experts or service providers required. Consider requiring the client to engage and pay third parties directly. Consider clear terms as to the circumstances in which failure to pay accounts as due can result in termination of your engagement and/or relieve you of the obligation to attend court appearances. See s. 3.6 of the BC Code regarding reasonable fees and disbursements. Be mindful of the BC Code requirements under s. 3.7 with respect to withdrawal from representation.
3. FOLLOW-UP FROM THE INITIAL INTERVIEW
3.1 Open the file: place the checklist in the file and make entries in diary and bring forward (“BF”) systems, noting relevant limitation periods, such as: .1 FLA, s. 147(4) deals with a stepparent’s liability to pay child support where the stepparent contributed to support and maintenance of child for one year and where proceedings are commenced within one year after the date that stepparent last contributed. But note the FLA criteria for parentage, including that a male person may be a “parent” if he lived in a marriage-like relationship with the birth mother within 300 days before, or on the day of, the child’s birth (FLA, s. 26(2)(d)). .2 FLA, s. 3, definition of “spouse”: carefully note the requirements to qualify as spouses. .3 FLA, s. 198 sets out the applicable limitation periods for bringing claims under Parts 5, 6, and 7. Note that the two-year limitation period does not apply to spousal support reviews under FLA, ss. 168 and 169. Note also s. 198(5) which suspends the running of the time limits during any period in which the parties are engaged in family dispute resolution with a family dispute resolution professional. .4 Land (Spouse Protection) Act, ss. 1 and 2: one spouse may only apply for an entry under this Act where the dwelling was occupied by the spouses as their residence within a period of one year immediately preceding the application. (Note that under s. 6, the Act ceases to apply when the spouses have separated and resolved ownership under the FLA.) .5 Divorce Act, s. 21(3), and Court of Appeal Act, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 77, s. 14(1)(a): 30-day limitation period for appeals. .6 Canada Pension Plan, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-8, ss. 55, 55.1, 55.2, 55.3: division of pension assets applies to a “common-law partnership” between two persons who cohabit in a conjugal relationship for at least one year. .7 Land Title Act, s. 293(1): a caveat expires after two months.

.8 Income Tax Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.), s. 56.1(3): tax relief is available only for spousal maintenance paid in the year in which an agreement is signed or a court order is made, and the preceding year (the Act applies as well to a “common-law partnership” between two persons who cohabit in a conjugal relationship for at least one year). .9 Limitation Act, S.B.C. 2012, c. 13, which came into force on June 1, 2013, changed many limitation periods that may be applicable to family law proceedings, such as claims regarding contracts and debt collection (e.g., loans from family members). The basic limitation period changed to two years (instead of six in the case of contracts), and the ultimate limitation changed to 15 years from 30. Division 2 of the Act sets out rules regarding the discovery of claims. Review of this legislation is recommended. 3.2 Send a letter to the client confirming the retainer and instructions, setting out the manner in which you will determine your fee for services, stating the conditions upon which you have agreed to act, and summarizing the points discussed, including follow-up to be carried out by the client. 3.3 Obtain any urgent relief required, e.g., declaratory order under FRA, s. 57 (if the case was commenced before March 18, 2013), injunction preventing disposition under FRA, s. 67 or FLA, s. 91, or personal protective orders under FLA, Part 9. 3.4 Gather the necessary information. 3.5 Implement initial instructions and continue preparation of case by consulting relevant legislation and checklists: FAMILY LAW AGREEMENT PROCEDURE (D-2), SEPARATION AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-3), MARRIAGE AGREEMENT DRAFTING (D-4), FAMILY LAW PROCEEDING (D-5), or GENERAL LITIGATION PROCEDURE (E-2).
4. COLLECT INFORMATION
4.1 Confirm compliance with Law Society of British Columbia Rules on client identification and verification, and complete the CLIENT IDENTIFICATION AND VERIFICATION PROCEDURE (A-1) checklist.
4.2 Client: .1 Full name, occupation, home and business addresses and telephone numbers, email addresses, and social insurance number. .2 Birthdate and place of birth. .3 Employer/school, address, telephone, position, salary. .4 (If applicable) marital status prior to marriage. .5 Previous surnames. .6 Addresses for last 12 months. .7 Any mental, emotional, or physical problems or other vulnerabilities relevant to any of the issues in the proceedings. Any medications the client is using or has been prescribed.
4.3 Client’s spouse (including unmarried spouse): .1 Name, address, telephone numbers, and social insurance number. .2 Birthdate and place of birth.
